

Old Mutual African Agricultural Fund (Luxembourg)

Société d'Investissement à Capital Variable

31 December 2013

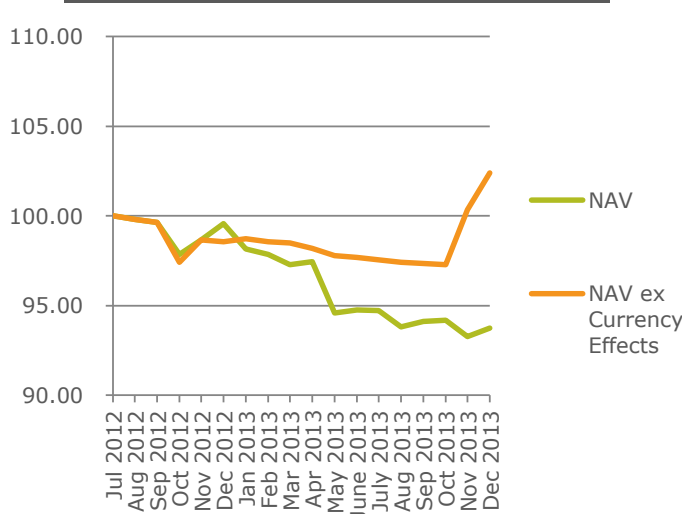

Investment advisor's report

Emerging market currencies continued to weaken during December. The South African Rand depreciated by 3.02% during December, however, this improves the profitability of South African farming operations as farms are able to export at higher prices. The acquisition of the fourth farm, a citrus farm in Eshowe, KwaZulu Natal, in the South African Agri Fund was completed in December. The farm is unique in that it is able to produce grapefruit for export to the Japanese market quite early relative to competing markets and thereby achieving a higher price for the produce.
